Subject to paragraph 3 and subsection (6.2), CAN/CSA-IEC 61400-11:13, “Wind Turbines – Part 11: Acoustic Noise Measurement Techniques”, dated August 2013 and available as described in subsection (6.5), is specified as the standard for a wind turbine for which an application for a renewable energy approval or an environmental compliance approval is submitted on or after May 1, 2016 and, subject to subsections (6.3) and (6.4), must include the positive uncertainty value, consisting of either,
 - i. the value provided by the manufacturer and calculated in accordance with that standard, or
 - ii. an additional 2 dB.
3. Subject to subsection (6.2), if CAN/CSA-IEC 61400-11:13, “Wind Turbines – Part 11: Acoustic Noise Measurement Techniques”, available as described in subsection (6.5), is amended and the adoption of the amendment comes into effect in accordance with subsection 177 (6) of the Act, the standard in that amended version is specified as the standard for a wind turbine for which an application for a renewable energy approval or an environmental compliance approval is submitted on or after the day the amended version comes into effect and, subject to subsections (6.3) and (6.4), must include the positive uncertainty value, consisting of either,

(6.2) Paragraph 1 of subsection (6.1) continues to apply to a wind turbine described in that paragraph in respect of changes to the wind turbine, unless an application in respect of a change to the wind turbine is submitted on or after May 1, 2016 and the change,

- (a) would result in a change to the wind turbine’s location; or
- (b) would increase the wind turbine’s octave-band sound power levels (linear weighted), as calculated in accordance with the standard specified in paragraph 1 of subsection (6.1), unless there would be no resulting increase in the sound level at any noise receptor within 1,500 metres of the turbine.

(6.3) The requirement in paragraph 2 of subsection (6.1) to include the positive uncertainty value as part of the calculation of the sound power level does not apply in respect of a wind turbine if,

- (a) the supply of renewable energy from the wind turbine is provided for in a power purchase agreement with the Independent Electricity System Operator entered into as part of the first phase of the Large Renewable Procurement process; and
- (b) as part of the application for a renewable energy approval, the person proposing to engage in the renewable energy project in respect of the wind turbine elects not to include the positive uncertainty value as part of the calculation of the sound power level.

(6.4) The requirement in paragraph 2 of subsection (6.1) to include the positive uncertainty value as part of the calculation of the sound power level does not apply in respect of a change to a wind turbine described in subsection (6.3) unless an application in respect of a change to the wind turbine is submitted after the renewable energy approval has been issued and the change,

- (a) would result in a change to the wind turbine’s location; or
- (b) would increase the wind turbine’s octave-band sound power levels (linear weighted), as calculated in accordance with the standard specified in paragraph 2 of subsection (6.1), unless there would be no resulting increase in the sound level at any noise receptor within 1,500 metres of the turbine.

(6.5) The standards mentioned in subsection (6.1) shall be available for review on request to the Director at the Ministry’s district offices and the Ministry’s Public Information Centre.

(6.6) In the following provisions, a reference to the sound power level of a wind turbine is a reference to the sound power level rounded to the nearest whole number:

1. The Table to section 6.
2. Clause 33 (4) (b).
3. Paragraph 2 of subsection 33 (5).
